Housing partners join forces to sign regeneration project agreement

THE Chartered Institute of Housing Conference in Harrogate was the venue for the signing of the Yarborough regeneration scheme Development Agreement.

The agreement is one between developer Stamford Homes North, parent housebuilding company Galliford Try and housing association Shoreline Housing Partnership – who are working as partners to redevelop and breath new life into the Grimsby estate.

The document was signed by Stamford Homes North managing director Brendan Blythe, Galliford Try group affordable director Stephen Teagle, Shoreline Chair Andrew Almond-Bell and Shoreline chief executive Tony Bramley

Delegates attending the annual conference were also able to see for themselves the exciting plans for the new look development – which will become a modern housing showpiece for the town, with over 400 homes, open spaces and local facilities – though a series of displays and exhibition boards.

Dozens of residents and tenants have supported the proposals through a series of workshops, with a specially drawn up Master Plan incorporating a range of ideas put forward by them.

A planning application for the redevelopment of the estate will be formally submitted to the local authority for consideration in next month.
